

---

Subject: Food for thought

Posted by Manualblock on Tue, 06 Sep 2005 22:55:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Over on the Joelist they are having a huge brou-ha-ha over Katrina just like we did. The emphasis is on a polar opposite leaning compared to what we saw here but it is actually a very good discussion. Interesting to see how others perceive this issue in the audio community; and how much importance they attach to it. Got me to think hey; if you love music and art, you cannot live or discuss those things in a vacuum. What you believe must influence what you perceive.

---

---

Subject: Re: Food for thought

Posted by Damir on Wed, 07 Sep 2005 10:46:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Back on the political uncorrectness, again Funny, nobody here is a black rapper (pardon me, Afro-American), but have the same opinion...

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2005/09/03/AR2005090300165.html>

---

---

Subject: Re: Food for thought

Posted by Manualblock on Wed, 07 Sep 2005 11:29:14 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

That's the start; when they can't bear to have dissent in the script. In totalitarian societies according to the record, most of the people in prison are there for their beliefs not for committing crimes. If you are sure of the sanctity of your mission it shouldn't matter what anyone says.

---