Subject: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Manualblock on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 15:09:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I would like to say something about the creeping tolerance for censoreship here in our country. Not to detail the specific instances because I am sure we all know it goes on.Why is it a bad thing? Well because it destroys trust. If you have to second guess everything you read; then how can you trust anything you read? It demeans those who practice it and it destroys the credibility of those who abide by it.Even in small seemingly unobtrusive ways that appear initially to be harmless the insidious effects have a half-life that eventually poisons all possibility of truth.All censoreship is predicated on reorganising the facts to suit the agenda.I would rather hear the most terrible truth than the happiest lie.Hey; look at Iraq..how many dead based on censored reports?

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Bill Martinelli on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 16:01:14 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

take forum moderation for example

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Tony Clifton on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 18:14:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I don't give a rats nut sack about no freaking censorship. Some bastards tried to take me off the stage, I pop 'em right in the keezer. Shmucks just can't do it for their wives like I can so they get snappy like a goddamn TOADFISH! If there's one thing I caaaaant stand it's making a big freaking deal outta nothin.

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Manualblock on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 18:46:15 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Anyway you look at it. Wait; I am a moderator; let me check that site!

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship

Posted by Bill Martinelli on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 18:57:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

since you bring it up. You're known to make a big deal out of nothin.

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Tony Clifton on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 20:41:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That's what Andy said when I fucked his girlfriend Lynne. Somethin' about loyalty, what a load of SHIT! I had to sue the little bastard. He thought he was a BIG freaking star. I was tired of him using my good name to get places!! So I fucked his girlfriend and now he's dead dead DEAD! I gotta be me, I gotta be me. Thank you very much.

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Manualblock on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 22:23:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You know we can see who you are. It's called IP locator. No hiding now.

Subject: Re: The Evil of Cencoreship
Posted by Bill Martinelli on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 23:32:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

john, send me an email if you have a chance

Subject: Moderator 2
Posted by Damir on Wed, 19 Oct 2005 10:48:58 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

This site?P.S. Remember "Catch 22" book, and fucked-up mail censor who erased nouns, werbs or pronouns in letters, depends of the mood... ?
http://www.incident.net/works/miseanu/nues.html

Subject: Re: The Evil of Censorship
Posted by Wayne Parham on Fri, 21 Oct 2005 15:58:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

If you asked me, there's a difference between censorship and tolerance. You'll find codes of conduct in public malls, libraries, churches, places of business, everywhere. Many of those places have rules against solicitors and most have rules against lewd behavior. It isn't that people are censored, but certain behaviors aren't tolerated in certain places.If a guy wants to act like a slut, he should to a whorehouse, not to a church, library or department store. If he wants to talk about the performance of a Corvette, he should go to a Chevorlet dealer or an automobile club. He shouldn't go into a Ford dealership with a megaphone, unless he wants to look like a boorish buffoon. He'll probably get shown the door, and it isn't because of censorship.