Small, and very little preserved - just (half) the tower, but in nice forest... Beginning of XVI century.

Is there more to this site that we can't see in the picture? Some of the wall structure must be buried beneath that mound am I right?

Yes, everything is covered with few meters of soil, most of the walls are destroyed/missing, and half of the tower. But, interestingly - the window frame is still there, after 400-500 years! If you need longevity, choose oak!
