Hey, where have YOU been? Me - as usual...P.S. In most of the movies I watched on TV during holidays I observed many angry, arguing people who liked to shoot and fight and pursue each other in fast cars...

Well Bill; you have a sense of humour; thats a good thing. You know of course I am joshing you; I know there are a couple things you don't have, hairs!(I don't have any to spare either.)

I heard that! My sister is always bitching about having to deal with gray hair. I explain I would trade hair problems in a second. Off to buy some lady clarol she goes.... Are they not working on some genetic gene for hair? Stem cell or some mutant clone thing? Cant even begin to imagine what that pill would cost! is it free enterprise, paying for centuries of research billions in developmental cost? or is just deep pocketed bald guys getting gouged with pharmesuticleese

Hold on I have to finish writing my check to Hair Club For Men. Yes I read there is a real stem cell advance regarding hair over across the pond.You know in the future our kids or grandkids will look at the old pictures of us with bald heads/glasses and some extra flat tire around the waist; Wrinkles and bumpy noses and say what the hell; we were a bunch of homely SOB's.Next I get pectoral implants and do some curls for the girls. You know...buff-up.Hey; whats a couple years pay to have hair. The girls will love that wavey look when we shuffle by on our walkers.

I'm sorry but that's just plain silly in my opinion.If I could still grow hair, it would be half way down my back like my kids is! I must admit, the low maintanance feature is pretty handy.

Bill; is that for Damirs post or mine; because I jest as I am sure you know. How we all are aging is a big topic around these parts; especially when the girls are getting endless cosmetic procedures like it was some kind of hobby or something. I just meant that just like we see those old photos from the 40's where everyone has bad teeth; our kids will have medical ways to grow hair/trim down/laser vision surgery/wrinkle elimination topical enzymatic creams etc. They are all going to look like teenagers in the future; while we look our age in the pics they will see from our past.

That was in response to the skin head fashion! I agree with you. In thirty years we will all have good teeth, lots of hair, a waist line like in 12th grade and swinging a 12" dick. to hell with pec implants.Ah the price of vanity...I have to read up on copywrite crap to get a leg on the would be horn copy theives out there.

Hey, sorry for my bad joke... but I found funny all that obsession with age, beauty, fitness, muscles, Viagra, white teeth, hair, etc. - hopelessly girl/gay/commercials/spam thing. No offence...

Yeah; you can't trust anyone anymore. If you do a search there is probably someone out there with a copyright on your name. I have a horn in my car; is that allowed?

No; you're absolutely correct. There are people out here who have no idea what a 50 yr old is supposed to look like. Good thing I am here to show them.
