As always - beautiful. 0.5 sec exposure on tripod would have been stunning.....Colin

Thanks, of course - it`s the only an amateur photo done with little (automatic) "Canon" S500, walking... The place is beautiful, indeed, and very special - the property of 18th century mistic count with his grave in one of the little caves.Two lakes, cave water-spring, in old woods, and many more on the small area, with now a path all around it...

Really nice shot. It looks like a watercolor painting. The Canon is nice; it gives a nice look to the scene. Those high rez cameras make everything look too defined. Like you get a pretty girl and she looks great with the Canon; then in high rez you see highlighted every pimple; every wrinkle. It's too weird.This camera gives a nice color and feel to the picture.
