If so; how do you recognise them? What if the acting is bad but the story is great?Is The Godfather the best movie made in this last 30 yrs?

I usualy see movies as a pure entertainment, and rarely works of art. On a rare ocasion older Russian, Italian or French movies reminds me of the 'literature' in motion. Rarely i see badly acted movies to be also a good story. It's more other way around. (The gangs of New York and Daniel Day Lewis) The Godfather? Nah, Eraserhead.
