I haven't remarked on a film lately because there hasn't been much ans so I've reverted to type and began watchingStar Trek dvds.But The Island was quite good. The production style looks like the high tech world of Minority Report. The storyis a variation on the what if everyone had a clone themeand is peppered with lots of action effects as is typicalof a Michael Bay film.I only get library lending copies of things so it's just mytime and not any rental dough. Scarlett Johansen is easy on the eyes. She and Jessica Alba must have been separatedat birth. I can never tell them apart.

I liked it a lot too. Reminded me of Logan's Run. So if you liked The Island and haven't seen Logan's Run, check it out.

Last time I saw her was in MI5, the Brit tv series.Some of us age better than others.Liv Ullman comes to mind here. I recommend a fairly recent film with U. in it called "Mindwalk".

Can't tell Scarlett Johansonn and Jessica Alba apart? See your eye doc They're both gorgeous, but Scarlett is a 'nordic' type (grand daugther of Danish Ejnar Johansonn, who made several broadcasts on cultural history on the national channel), and Jessica is certainly 'latin' (that she's had to dye her hair blonde for movies is another matter). And, Scarlett has bigger you-know-whats! But they're both very cute...Jenny Agutter was in Nicolas Roeg's "Walkabout" (she was 18), about a couple of kids finding their way through the Australian desert after a plane crash - she played a 14 year old girl, who couldn't manage the sexuality of the aborigine young man, who saved them (she was playing a 14 year old).

Nice pics of Agutter, Wayne. Still haven't really gotten over seeing her naked in "Walkabout" over 30 years ago! Hard stuff for a ~14 year old kid...

Thats true with the voice of an angel and the body of a ballet dancer. What a package. Writes all her own songs.

I saw & heard her the first time on, of all things, an ABBA TV-show, as a guest star! She of course did "Wuthering Heights"

I saw her the first time on Saturday Night Live about 28 yrs ago. Because she is afraid to fly she made only one or two trips across the pond so not many knew of her until that spot including me. When she came on she did "Them Heavy People," and the song was nice but damn; she looked like some Celtic Goddess from a woodbllock print . Absolutely astonishing. Black hair and hazel/green eyes. All the so-called beauties of the current time look like children.

It's the bee-sting lip thing. I'd swear that S. was one of thosewho had a lip job. Silicon goes in more places than boobs.

I told my son that in fifty years they will be able to make everyone look like greek gods. When the kids look back at all the old photos and see us with eyeglasses and crooked teeth and no hair and pot-bellies and whatever else can be wrong with the human figure they will think we came from some other planet.But then will the girls still look great or will they all be cookie-cutter replicants?

If they are all replicants of Jessica Alba-- esp in Sin City -- whowould care?I am a replicant of Jabba the Hut.The big lip thing to me is just peculiar. I thought that JuliaRoberts had the "I Am A Ubangi From Hollywood" territory wrapped up.
