For five years then right before the Novembr elections; Now I ain't saying this is a conspiracy; only that it is very conveniently timed wouldn't you say?

I hate the fact that I've become so cynical that I had the same thought right off the bat. I have no doubt this is the real deal. But it's certainly an indicator of how far this administration has driven our distrust of government. If it was a setup, next month would have been better. I'm convinced it was not. I applaud the british for what is obviously a great piece of detective work. Sherlock Holmes would be proud.

Thats the everyday hard work of the real guys who protect us. The cops and FBI and Sky Marshalls. Since most authorities believe the Iraq thing has made us less safe not more then we had better reward the little guys in the trenches who are doing this work.

You have a point Damir. Video surveillance everywhere. The loss of privacy here is nothing compared to what's happened in the UK.

How about Singapore? You can't squat without a camera there observing.

98 and 44/100 percent pure bullshit. Only slightly more credible than getting a bunch of half-wits in Florida living in an abandoned warehouse to agree with a ranting FBI agent and then arresting them.

Oh, yeah, another imminent threat averted just after Joe loses and Lamont wins

I don't know if anyone can wake people up to what's happening but keep on trying. Charlie
