The Washington Post revealed last week that the person who actually leaked Valerie Plame's name was Richard Armitage, a former State Department official who was not entirely onboard with the Bush administration's plans to invade Iraq. Hardly someone who would out her to punish her husband. Today The Washington Post editorial page said the following: "It now appears that the person most responsible for the end of Ms. Plame's CIA career is Mr. Wilson. Mr. Wilson chose to go public with an explosive charge, claiming — falsely, as it turned out — that he had debunked reports of Iraqi uranium-shopping in Niger and that his report had circulated to senior administration officials." Wonder how many Democrats here will be man enough to admit they were wrong?

I don't remember anyone trying and convicting anyone over this; It was the administrations stonewalling that angered them; not any presumption of guilt. If they had no involvement why did they stonewall the investigation then? Read the stories carefully and you too will see. All the Democrats wanted was answers; they never asked for anything else.

Of course. And I'm sure you'll be saying the same thing if Delay is found innocent as well.

Actually I won't because in that case I personally have a deep seated feeling that he is guilty. If not I will personally offer my profuse apologies and beg forgiveness for past transgressions. Some people; like Delay are born guilty and I can't disregard my gut instinct on this. Rather than use words that might offend someone I will say this; he is a used car salesman. I recognise the breed.

I don't think there is a genuine bone in his body. Doesn't all that phony born-again schtick ever irritate you at all? I feel like I am being sold on a life-insurance annuity policy or a time-share in Hoboken every time I hear the man speak. I feel that same way with a lot of his cronies in the Senate and House whenever they start jawing. The "Hammer"; Pulleeeese. Give me a break.

"Wilson chose to go public with an explosive charge, claiming — falsely, as it turned out — that he had debunked reports of Iraqi uranium-shopping in Niger" Really? There's no point in correcting the record - I recommend even more truthiness!

All the Truthiness You can Handle!
