

---

Subject: The American Dream

Posted by wunhuanglo on Fri, 08 Sep 2006 08:31:34 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Convicted with secret evidence. Yahoo!Military Lawyers Clash With White House- - - - -
-By ANNE PLUMMER FLAHERTY Associated Press WriterSeptember 07,2006 | WASHINGTON
-- The Pentagon's top uniformed lawyers took issue Thursday with a key part of a White House plan to prosecute terrorism detainees, telling Congress that limiting the suspects' access to evidence could violate treaty obligations. Their testimony to a House committee marked the latest time that military lawyers have publicly challenged Bush administration proposals to keep some evidence -- such as classified information -- from accused terrorists.

---

---

Subject: Re: The American Dream

Posted by Manualblock on Fri, 08 Sep 2006 11:17:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Do you get the feeling that the military people really don't like this administration? I know the grunts on the ground in Bhagdad aren't too happy with them. The New Vietnam; just like we pictured it.

---

---

Subject: Re: I don't Buy Armitages Story

Posted by Manualblock on Fri, 08 Sep 2006 11:23:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Why take three years to release this? He claims the special prosecutor knew but told him to keep it confidential?? Why? Something smells fishy here.

---

---

Subject: Re: I don't Buy Armitages Story

Posted by wunhuanglo on Sat, 09 Sep 2006 04:16:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

The only thing I know for certain is that for the last 6+ years the stories never add up and constantly change.

---