Does anybody know where I can find a DVD with a Russian movie "Night Watch"? It is called "Nochnoy Dozor" in Russian. I have the original but I would like to have the one with English subtitles, so my American friends would understand what's going on.It's one of the best movies Russians ever made. A brief description:There are people among us who look usual but who are different – they call themselves Others. They can enter the magic layer of reality – Dusk, feel the magic power and use it for their different magic abilities. From the very beginning of our days Others took a side to serve to and to fight for. Others who protect Light united in the Night Watch as they fight against those who come out in the night time. Others who fight for Darkness united into Day Watch. Their battle goes on for ages – and will be going on until the balance is lost and one side wins forever…Thank you for any help and I hope you enjoy it too.

I looked for it on Amazon.com, using the name "Nochnoy Dozor". "Night Watch" brought up unrelated things, other movies of the same name and things like that. I didn't see a DVD of Nochnoy Dozor yet, but Amazon does list the book and theater show times.Nochnoi Dozor Movie InfoNight Watch : A novel (Paperback)

Did you try Gemm.com? I didn't search the database but I have never sought out a recording or movie yet that they couldn't find. And I threw them some curves. They list well over 100k movies or so they claim. You have to create an account though.

The store in the first link I provided does not take PayPal (credit card protection) and has low feedback. Check out the store in the link provided. This store has much higher feedback and takes PayPal.....Colin

No; his name is Aaron; which would be Erin in Gaellic I think. Don't ask me how he ended up with a Jewish name, I just liked it and my wife also; and funny but it fits him. He's the only Aaron in the whole Catholic High School.How's your son doing? Does he go out for St. Paddy's Day? A little corned beef and cabbage with the Guiness? Actually he would not be old enough to drink; am I right? 19?

In Russia Aaron would be called Eric but this is not a typical Russian name either.You are right. Michael is 19, not old enough to drink but just right to date.  He is doing fine. Thanks for asking.

Is it in New York? St Paddy's Day Parade, of course it's in New York; right down Fifth Avenue for only about 254yrs now. First parade occured in 1762. Largest Parade for St. Paddy's day in the whole wide world. This year they have over 250,000 marchers and usually about a million watchers depending on the weather.When we were younger we used to go but it got to where there were so many drunks that it was a zoo in there. Now they control the alchohol so it is more of a family thing. The real action is in the bars along Second Avenue; lot of Irish pubs that way. He passed at 12:48 EST.

Thank you. It was very interesting to read. It reminds me of parades in my hometown Odessa, Ukraine on April 1. The local authorities try to control drunks too but they often fail because cops are drunker than the rest of the crowd.

There is an area of Brooklyn South down by the water over by Coney Island they call,"Little Odessa" here. There are so many people of Russian descent that that is the only language you hear. And all the signs are in Cyrillic? And great pastries there BTW. Very nice visiting with you.
