Subject: 3 Pi subwoofer mounting question
Posted by Psychoacoustic on Mon, 15 Mar 2010 03:35:17 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hello All,
The LAB 12 woofers came from the factory with laminated paper gaskets glued to the underside of the mounting surround. Should this be removed and the woofer be mounted directly to the cabinet or left in place as a spacer? Does it make any difference? Thanks.

Subject: Re: 3 Pi subwoofer mounting question
Posted by Wayne Parham on Mon, 15 Mar 2010 04:13:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Those gaskets sometimes matter when horn loading, but not when used as a direct radiator. It's usually a clearance issue. In all my designs, I leave the attached gaskets in place, but I don't use the extra one packaged with the driver.