Has anyone seen the movie Hurt Locker? I saw it got great reviews and also is up for a lot of awards. It is about the war and I think bomb specialists. I want to see it, but I wanted to know what others thought first.

I watched the movie because it won the best picture in the Oscars. I would recommend it because we will have a glimpse on what the soldiers in Iraq are trying to fight at. The fighting is not really all guns and bullets but with their wits as well.

I've watched the movie twice. The first time was in the cinema with my husband. The second time was at my friend's house because she bought the original DVD and invited me to watch again. I just don't like the explosions in the movie. It really looks like real.

I really wasn't impressed with it at all. I really couldn't get into the movie and I'm going to have to rent it to watch it again to see if there was something I missed. I AM willing to watch it again but I really don't know if I will like it even though I'm going to watch it again.

When my husband was watching it I was busy and it is a movie that you really have to "watch" as opposed to doing something else while watching and get the gist of it. I'll have to watch it again to see what it was really about.
