Subject: Radio channels
Posted by Chuckles101 on Thu, 10 Jun 2010 21:19:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

As the new age has come out, people are using radios less and less. But there are some of us that are still using radios. If so, which type of radio channel do you listen to?

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by candoon on Fri, 11 Jun 2010 17:34:50 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have one in the car, in the truck, one on my desk at work, in the bath at home (showers and rocking out = YES!), and one in the bedroom. I flip through stations like you would not believe, but what I really want to get back into is the CB land (my pap was a trucker) and I want to teach my girl about them.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by capbuster on Tue, 15 Jun 2010 01:23:50 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I listen all the time too. But at night listen to 740 am Canada old school stuff love it.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Lancelot on Thu, 17 Jun 2010 02:47:13 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

To be honest, I don't listen to the radio anymore because I don't have one. However, I listen to online radio stations. I'm a classical music person so I try to find stations that play classical music.

What I'm wondering right now is when would radios become obsolete. We are already in the digital age and we can download anything we want, make sure it is paid though.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Chuckles101 on Thu, 01 Jul 2010 20:52:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Seems like there are varied opinions about the radio in the 21st century. To answer my own question myself, I still use the radio from time to time. Sometimes I even go to an internet radio channel and listen to it. It can be really amusing, depending on the channel.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Danny on Mon, 20 Sep 2010 15:56:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I don't listen to the radio as much anymore, since I started working from home. But,I grew up listening to nothing but radio. I couldn't have lived without it back then. When I do listen to the radio now - I look for the "oldies" stations.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by cuzido on Mon, 11 Oct 2010 13:11:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I listen to the radio in my car mostly and when I do it is anything from rock to country. My girls have their favorite station and my husband has his and then I just go with the flow. I have enjoyed a few of the morning shows out there.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Wonderwoll on Wed, 13 Oct 2010 12:21:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I like the oldies type shows too. I actually don't mind listening to anything except chat shows. I can't take all the inane chit chat, (though I do like the late night phone in type.)

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Wolfgang on Sat, 16 Oct 2010 20:02:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I still love listening to radio. When I'm cleaning, cooking or reading I listen to Classic station. Sometimes I listen BBC Radio for news and stuff. And occasionally, I listen to Top 10.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by 3dfreak on Mon, 18 Oct 2010 13:27:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I still listen to radio stations but I no longer have a radio at home, except the one inside the car. . I use my cellphone to listen to FM stations these days. Sometimes I listen to the streaming audio of the stations via internet.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by audioaudio90 on Wed, 20 Oct 2010 13:22:37 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I listen to the radio mostly in the car, although sometimes I will listen to online stations. I like rock, particularly classic rock, so I listen to that almost exclusively. The funny thing is that when I listen to the radio online, I don't listen to anything local--I like The Drive, out of Chicago.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by 3dfreak on Mon, 25 Oct 2010 15:38:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

With all the Wifi hype going on around, we may indeed one day be all listening to internet music, even while driving. Ford appears to be the first one to do it. Their new models now incorporate mobile wifi. Ain't that absolutely cool?

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Billie on Wed, 24 Nov 2010 13:55:06 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have a job that involves a round trip of 50 miles a day. The radio is always on and tuned to classic fm, occasionally I will switch to Radio 4 to listen to their discussions.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by DrumRoll on Thu, 25 Nov 2010 05:47:41 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It may be awhile before we see the Radio go away. Now that purchased radio formats exist, that area will continue to grow and change. Also talk radio shows have gained a lot of popularity within the past 10 years.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by Rockstar on Sat, 27 Nov 2010 13:11:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I listen to the radio still in the car and at work. At home I listen to the internet radio or music on TV.

I listen to Rock and country, pretty much everything but the oldies.

Subject: Re: Radio channels
Posted by DJ Dave on Tue, 01 Mar 2011 16:00:24 GMT

I stream a lot of radio stations that I have learned to enjoy from traveling.  Even "out of the country" stations.  There is really only one local station that I like anymore.