If you want a very well done feel good movie, then this is it. I really enjoyed it. It you're the type who gets choked up and teary eyed then bring some Cleanex with you I couldn't talk through a lot of it.

Are you saying you _usually_ talk through movies?

Not unless it's a stinker I usually write more clearly in posts than that. Or at least I'm under the illusion I do Don't spoil it for me by telling me the truth.

What's it about? I'm not asking for a spoiler, but generally, what is the story line?

It's a true story about how a town chooses to deal with tragedy. Most of Marshall University's football team and coaching staff are killed in a plane crash coming home from a game.The story tells how various people dealt with their grief. If you are ever feeling like the world sucks and you need a mental pick me up. This is it.I left out the best parts of the story line but you get the idea

One thing I think really added to the impact of the tragedy was that the plane crashed at the local airport. Which allowed people to see it up close and personal. Which I think would be all the more devastating to everyone.
