I'm not sure about that. I guess the writers were stranded on a mysterious desert island.loll'm a huge fan of this survival drama movie.

I love this show. It is my "cannot be missed" show of the week. It doesn't start again until Jan or Feb next year. I think I'm going to watch the first 3 seasons again before it starts... just to reacquaint myself. We can't be the only three that like this show on this forum, can we?

This is by far my most favorite TV show on right now. I have watched Lost since the beginning and I can't wait to find out all the answers to our questions.

I want to know if Sayid is really evil, if Sun and Jin reunite and many other things.

Only a few more left.....

I can't wait..

So we have found out that Jack's dad really wasn't his dad- it was the person who is in Locke right now.

I agree that I love Lost! It's my favorite show on TV and it's almost over. I want answers but I don't want the end to come.

I am wondering if we will see Walt again! That is the part that broke my heart.

A truly powerful show that has kept the fans interested for years. Quite an achievement.

I have seen the first few seasons but got distracted when it all got a bit too 'Twin peaks', which is quite a statement considering..... I do still wonder what happened so now I am ready to jump back in and catch up.

'The person who is in Locke' - that really did it for me. Must see
