My brother has recently bought this new device that can be connected directly through the 3.5mm jack on any mp3 players. What it does is it takes the audio from the player and transmits it to a 5 meter radius at a certain frequency. So if you ever want to listen to your music through the radio, now you can!

That's really awesome! See, this is what I absolutely love about technology! There are constantly new things that can be done and it's just so cool. I love buying new things!

That is pretty cool. What I'd like to see next is some type of audio amplifier that can automatically amplify the sound of the beach as you're down on it. Not too loud, but loud enough to where you can enjoy it more.
