Couple of us are after having a bash at this. I get the impression from reading around that it is the most important part and I am prepared to pay a little more for a decent product. But after that I am stumped.

Anyone done it and been happy with the result?

I do not have the car I want yet to get a head unit. I have looked at some prices but there is just no way I can justify it for "the family car". Now I love my car do not get me wrong, but for a head unit like say even just a "decent one" I want it in my Mustang.

Ahhh so this will be a job for when your family are grown and gone and you get to buy a 'you' car? Hmmm, maybe you will have grandbabies by then and still be stuck
