Subject: about 4 pi
Posted by aurelien on Sat, 17 Jul 2010 12:31:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dear All,
I am considering buying a pair of four pi speakers with all the options to have the "best" filter and drivers (not in kit : fully built). Could you give me your opinion ? In particular : they are far less expensive than most speakers of this range, do you know why ? Do you know how they compare with other speakers featuring a horn and a 15" woofer ? An aesthetics detail : are they delivered with grids ?
Thanks !
Best,
Aurelien (from France).

Subject: Re: about 4 pi
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sat, 17 Jul 2010 13:46:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'll let others report back with their opinions on sound quality, and also encourage you to read the online reviews. But I did want to let you know that we do not make grilles for our loudspeakers. I've done a few over the years as special orders, and in fact, my most recent pair of speakers had them. But I generally recommend againsyt them because they have a negative impact on the sound.

Subject: Re: about 4 pi
Posted by aurelien on Sat, 17 Jul 2010 14:19:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Many thanks for your kind answer.
However, this would be for an audio system to be used in my office. And the fact is that this is a rather "dusty" and not very "friendly" environment (just because I am a researcher and not a businessman !). So I think grilles would be very welcome. Do you think such a special order could be considered ?
Best regards.

Subject: Re: about 4 pi
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sun, 18 Jul 2010 13:58:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well, yes, I can have the cabinet shop bid some grilles. We talk about style when you're ready to order.