Is there anybody who still listen to the Sound of Music?

Yes, I still listen to the soundtrack that I have had since the movie was released. It is a bit crackly but no matter. I know the songs so well I sing along every time.

Good to hear that the hills are still ringing with the Sound of Music. Some songs are timeless in their universal appeal.

The answer is a resounding Yes!, at least in my home. I will never get tired watching this classic.

I read somewhere that in South Korea they use this movie in teaching and learning English.

Hmm, talk about imaginative creativity.

Interesting to think of people using this movie to learn English. Makes sense though as the pronunciation is quite clear. I have also heard of a tour where the film was shown in theatres along with subtitles. Evidently the audience dress up and sing along, sounds Rocky Horror like.
