Do the 4pi's have to be directed right at the listening position. The shelf that hold my LCR behind my AT screen is about two and a half feet above ear level. The monitors I use now are angled towards the LP. I sit about 10 feet away from the screen. To angle the 4pi's I would need a little more room behind the screen to do that angle.....

What do you think....

See the links in the post below, especially the last four which talk specifically about placement and orientation.

Looks like the drivers are mounted to the baffle and not inset... This is no longer a concern, flush mounting...
