What's your take on this hot topic? Do you think we have 'the right to know', regardless of the outcome of sharing classified information? Can whistleblowers ever come out on top?

I only catch some information about the whole Wikileaks problem going on currently, but it is a rather weird situation. On one hand, no way should these people be spreading secrets that our enemies could easily find out about!

...On the other, our country has a right to know what's going on with our government and what decisions are being made. I don't think we should be in the fark about what's happening, so I'd prefer for Wikileaks to continue what it's doing.

I fear it won't last for long though. Those guys are in some major trouble.
