I'm still making a list of what I want for Christmas and remember seeing something at Target that looked interesting. It's called a video game rocker and it is supposed to amplify the gaming experience with audio boosters inside. Does anyone have any personal experience with these? What's the hype? Are they worth buying?

My best friend has one of these, and if you're really into video games I'd say they're worth buying. The one he bought has a speaker in the headrest, and the sound quality's actually pretty decent in it. Beyond that, it's really comfortable to sit in too.
