
Subject: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by AudioFred on Mon, 20 Dec 2010 13:21:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Something I've learned from my rich Houston Audio Society friends with $250K+ systems that occupy an entire room is that more expensive is always better, unless you want to have a girlfriend or wife someday.

File Attachments

1) audio-room.jpg, downloaded 3122 times

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by Wonderwoll on Mon, 20 Dec 2010 13:32:08 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That is absolutely hilarious! I started reading before I saw the picture so had some preconceived ideas about what was coming - you proved me totally wrong!

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by Wayne Parham on Mon, 20 Dec 2010 15:52:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by Adveser on Tue, 21 Dec 2010 15:25:17 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Squeezing that last little bit of detail out that was not intended to be heard nor were any of the producers aware of it.

I don't know. Everything in the signal chain has to be the same quality level and playback equipment is no different. If your reproduction equipment exceeds most studio standards you aren't really getting anything extra out of it.

I find it really puzzling some people listen to ancient phonographs on super high quality equipment, which never really go above 8Khz because the original recordings were so hastily put together.

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by Manilyn on Fri, 07 Jan 2011 08:08:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That's really funny I think when anyone is too interested in something, it makes it hard for the opposite sex to understand and relate to. Unless, that person is really into the same thing. Then it could work out great and they could blow their eardrums together

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by AudioFred on Fri, 07 Jan 2011 13:27:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Manilyn wrote on Fri, 07 January 2011 02:08That's really funny I think when anyone is too interested in something, it makes it hard for the opposite sex to understand and relate to. Unless, that person is really into the same thing. Then it could work out great and they could blow their eardrums together

Many of the audiophiles I know who have megabuck systems in a large dedicated room furnished with only one listening chair happen to be geeky bachelors. But other audiophiles I know who have big systems with enormous subwoofers occupying an entire wall, like Wayne P, are geeky married guys with drop-dead-gorgeous wives. So maybe there's hope for geeky guys with big systems and small tweeters

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by AudioFred on Fri, 07 Jan 2011 13:33:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I stand corrected. Melissa sent me a pm telling me that Wayne definitely is a geek, but his tweeter is bigger and woodier than one might expect.

File Attachments

1) Pi_Wood_Tweeter.jpg, downloaded 2653 times

Subject: Re: More Expensive Is Always Better
Posted by MusicDiva on Sat, 08 Jan 2011 03:10:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Coollest picture ever! I can't even tell you how many guys I've seen (and some girls even) that go overboard with speakers or even computers. It cracks me up.
