My favorite old time radio series of all time is the Lone Ranger. Today's shows, with their violence and language, have nothing over these classics, in which the hero saved the day using the power of good over evil.

Hi Ho Silver!

Connie, I agree that the old time shows were refreshing in their lack of language and violence. They still gave a great story with a moral lesson, without the graphic scenes. Oh, to return to the innocent age!

Your points are so well taken. It is amazing when you watch the classic tv shows how they were so entertaining and humorous without the need for violence or questionable language or topics. Maybe it would be a good idea to have a "Classics" TV station. I have a feeling it would get a big viewing audience.
