I really miss having a nice surround sound system in my living room. I used to have one in my bedroom as well. Living in an apartment really makes it tough to enjoy music and movies like I used to. I don't want to be one of those annoying neighbors..

Why don't you have one anymore? I do not think they are annoying to neighbors, unless you live in an apartment and play it too loudly.

It's time to get set up again if you miss it.

You really are a considerate neighbor. In some apartments you can hear when your neighbor coughs, so they could very possibly hear your surround sound. But maybe they would enjoy hearing it especially if it is a movie they enjoy. All kidding aside, you are so right that once you get used to surround sound you just can't go back.

You are much nicer than me. I'd still have my surround set up! I would turn the bass down a bit and try not to blast the volume though.
