I like almost all music but I love listening to love songs as they reminded of fond times. We listen to music depending on what we have gone through during past years of our life. So which one do you like?

Every once in a while there is a song that you can listen to over and over again and never grow tired of it. There is one song that when I hear it, I have to drop everything and hang on every word. So what is this powerful song for me? Paul Davis' "I Go Crazy".

I love different genres of music ranging from the stuff that can be heard on the radio, to more underground music. Heck, I even have some videogame soundtracks on my iPod right now. Normally though, I end up listening to 5-10 songs all the time out of whatever I have in my playlist, then change to different songs when I find something I like.

I don't like really loud music. I really enjoy alternative and pop rock though, even if sometimes it can get a bit loud. My favorite music genres to listen to are country, light rock, and acoustic. James Morrison, MoZella, Adele, and Laura Izibor are among my favorite singers.

Adele is pretty cool. You just made me want to listen right now. But I don't understand not liking loud music. Well, unless it is just some classical background music....

I used to have only one musical taste - art rock. Only music from Yes, Genesis, Gentle Giant, Emerson Lake and Palmer and others like them would pass under my turntable stylus. I was sort of a music bigot then too, in that other kinds of rock seemed too simple for my tastes, so called three-chord-rock was definitely not for me. But then I loosened up some, and eventually would listen to other types. Now days, I listen to a lot of different kinds of music. The audio shows have been responsible for a lot of that, since there are so many people there with so many different tastes.

Adveser, you are a rock solid fan. I like listening to those kind of music when I was younger. I like listening to more softer and mellower music these days because I wanted to relax after a tiring job.

Sometimes I don't like this holiday season because the songs are always the same anywhere I go. And even if I don't want to sing that song, I am forced to sing it in my mind because I keep hearing it. I'm talking about Rudolph, the Red Nose Reindeer.

I usually listen to what's on the radio, like pop music. I have no patience to search for new stuff. Anyway, the music on the charts are pretty good too, Katy Perry, Lady gaga, Rihanna, etc...xx
