TV critics do not like the idea of being lost forever.

Following the decision of the producers' to set a 2010 date for "Lost DVD," Summer TelevisionWeek Critics Poll participants had nothing but praise for the season fourth revision of the ABC mystery-drama. Coming in at No. 1 in the semi-annual survey by a wide margin, "Lost" cracked the top five of nearly every critic of view. "They said that the show was probably on the emergency services." They, the critics say (and I myself) were wrong. I keep coming back, "Maureen Ryan, Chicago Tribune wrote.

In fact, despite the grumblings, the critics have not completely given up on "Lost." The summer of 2007 Critics Poll, "Lost" finished second in "The Sopranos," which closed the six-season HBO run in that year. "How I Met Your Mother DVD" is a break of eligibility during the winter of 2008 poll. "The most creative show of the season charge, 'Lost' exciting again this year its position as a television series of the action more adventurous and emotional appeal," TV Guide, Matt Roush wrote. "Playing with time and our expectations, the program has raised the bar in his fourth season as a joke to us glimpses of the Oceanic Six in his post-island life tormented, still playing lots of grip on the island and flashbacks".

Critics have said a date for the pre-"Sons of Anarchy DVD" -2009 to 10 seasonal looks like a great help to history. Many of the season two three complaints centered on the story meanders and the filler episodes. "The fixed end date and the new flash-forward structure gave new life to what was and is a copy of one of the most exciting, amazing, pure entertainment shows on television," writes Alan Sepinwall, critic for the Star -Ledger of New Jersey. Taking the No. 2 spot on HBO's "The Wire" which recently ended its run. In the winter of 2007, most recently "Criminal Minds DVD" was eligible for the survey TVWeek critics, the series took first place. "Ax-grinding, could intrigue anachronistic Baltimore Sun has not reached all the main characters and the plot labyrinthine, and finale of the series was one of the most elegantly treated finals in recent history," writes Robert Philpot of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Universal Media Studios has dominated the top 10, with three to seven points occupied by the product's entertainment arm NBC Universal, including Fox's "Supernatural DVD" and science fiction, Battlestar Galactica. "The NBC comedy night on Thursday" 30 Rock "and" The Office ", he continued his consistent performances in the survey, with "Rock" improved slightly on his arrival at No. 4 Winter 2008 polling in third place in This time the latter, while "The Office" went from No. 8 and No. 4.
