When I first got my iPod I spent so much time creating my music library. Then I discovered that most radio shows have downloadable podcasts. I have a great collection of documentaries and novels. In fact, I now use my iPod more for listening to the podcasts to which I have subscribed. Do you download podcasts to you MP3 player ?

I really enjoy the howstuffworks podcasts. I used to work for an attorney's office and I basically drove all day. I can only cycle through the same playlists so many times before I'm bored out of my mind. These casts were a lifesaver in the car.

Juice is a podcast managing software that works across platforms for mp3players and has positive feedback. The application also has a built-in directory of casts, and you can download directly from the publishers sites as well.

My favourite podcast for my iPod was the Fighting Talk podcasts, they were brilliant. French language podcasts also helped me with my exams, they are worth listening to if your interested in learning a new language. Anybody else use podcasts like these?
