Subject: Radio announcers
Posted by Wuzajock on Mon, 21 Mar 2011 13:35:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Since this is an audio forum, I wonder how many radio jocks there are here. Jocks, by the way, is an industry term for radio announcer and is a shortened version of "disk jockeys" which has really transitioned now to people who play music at weddings.

Subject: Re: Radio announcers
Posted by RadioDinosaur on Wed, 20 Apr 2011 20:46:07 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

So true, but the term disc jockey was the correct name when they actually played discs (records). I was in radio for quite some time, Top 40 mostly. It was fun back then. Now it's all different. Nice to meet you.