Hello everybody! I'm looking for good tube amp to my system. I want big soundstage, warm and full bodied sound. Transparency and clarity are less important things. Do you have some experiences about Mastersound mono blocks 845 vs. BAT VK-55?

Mr. Arksa; Deciding upon a pre-amp of the quality and cost such as the units you mention requires an in home audition. With your existing equipment in your listening room. There really is no other way to make this choice. Both units matched with components of good quality will sound they way you want them to; but they must be auditioned with your system. What is your amplifier?

Hello manualblock! I have quite small listening room about 16m². My pre-amp is Densen Beat B-200 and speakers are Amphion Krypton (www.amphion.fi). They are large speakers with panel-like sound, very high resolution and very dynamic (price 10 000 euro). The amplifier sound what I'm looking for is close, palpable and musically. If you have some experience about Mastersound or BAT, please, let me know.
