Do you tweak the audio in your car as well as your home? What brands of amp and speakers do you like to use in your car?

I don't really do anything with car audio; I just listen to what comes standard. I haven't actually heard a car audio system that sounded good; they all seem to be about bass and rattling the windows and frame.

I personally am so disgusted with commercial radio and even satellite one that I don't listen to it in the car. I have an mp3, but I usually listen through my headphones.

I understand where you're coming from, Serena, but I have to have some music while driving or I go crazy. I use the stock speakers in my car and they are ok, but not great.

My car is one of my chief mix monitoring stations. I have a little 10 inch single cone sub and a JBL amp. It isn't gonna shake the block but that isn't really the response I am looking for anyhow. I like tight bass a lot more than sloppy bass!
