Subject: Will there be more competition in satellite radio soon?
Posted by brian21 on Sun, 29 May 2011 07:25:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Since Sirius and XM Radio have merged, I've wondered if anyone else can enter this industry and challenge them. Monopolies have always kind of irritated me. I just think you never know if you're getting the best of what's available if there's no competition. Do you think it's possible for another company to enter the satellite radio market in the near future? Or should we buy the argument that there's enough competition from other music formats?