Does anyone here teach music lessons? What instrument(s) do you teach?

I think it would take a lot of patience and a certain ability to withstand the sound of sour notes.

I teach drums and hand percussion. It can be awful to work with students, but it's not the sour notes that are the problem, it's the lack of trying and respect, especially when rich parents are just hiring you as a musical baby sitter while they go shop. Teaching kids whom are truly into learning, no matter how unmusical they may be, is rewarding.

I'm not a music teacher but I can share what I know to someone who likes to learn how to play the piano. I play musical pieces as my free-time activity.
