
Subject: Hearing Damage

Posted by audioaudio90 on Wed, 31 Aug 2011 18:46:50 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

My dad's penchant for listening to music way too loudly is finally catching up to him. I'm sure some of it is age as well, but really, I tried to tell him and he wouldn't listen, and now he needs a hearing aid.

Subject: Re: Hearing Damage

Posted by Chicken on Thu, 01 Sep 2011 12:12:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That is too bad, but I am sure he knew there was a chance of this happening. It must be frustrating to watch though.

Subject: Re: Hearing Damage

Posted by moviegeek on Thu, 01 Sep 2011 16:53:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I see a lot of teenagers blasting loud music into their ears all the time. Sometimes when you try to advise them, they'll think that you're just trying to spoil their fun.

I think the authorities should start "Say NO To Loud Music" campaigns to protect our younger generations from hearing loss.

Subject: Re: Hearing Damage

Posted by gofar99 on Thu, 01 Sep 2011 18:50:52 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Hearing loss is a sad thing to folks that love music. I find it ironic that by the time we can afford really good gear - or at least can appreciate good music we are on the down slope of the hearing curve.

Subject: Re: Hearing Damage

Posted by moviegeek on Fri, 02 Sep 2011 17:28:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

gofar99 wrote on Thu, 01 September 2011 14:50Hi Hearing loss is a sad thing to folks that love music. I find it ironic that by the time we can afford really good gear - or at least can appreciate good music we are on the down slope of the hearing curve.

You are talking like hearing loss is something inevitable that can't be prevented. It is totally within a person's control. You just have to ensure that you listen to music properly to protect your eardrums.

Subject: Re: Hearing Damage
Posted by gofar99 on Fri, 02 Sep 2011 19:05:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi, Unnecessary damage is preventable for sure, but loss due to aging is a factor with us dinosaurs.

Subject: Re: Hearing Damage
Posted by FloydV on Mon, 19 Dec 2011 08:27:45 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

To say hearing loss is totally preventable is to not understand the aging process. By the time you are 60, you will have noticeable loss (at least to a hearing professional). By the time you are 80, you will probably be 50% deaf. Even hearing aids will only aid, not restore with that many years.

Floyd
