This weekend i stayed with a cycleing family, was going to ride in an event that was called off due to high winds, not a good thing with an 800mile round trip.

The household dining room doubled as a listening room and is home to a rather nice setup, Marantz Cd17, passive pre, Quad 2's and a pair of 6Pi's.

Ive listened to plenty of HiFi since i became addicted, some ive been very 'whats the fuss about' and other stuff 'ive just gotta win the lottery NOW' (we all know how that one goes!) ect.

I think the only thing i can say about what i heard was a softness of the quads in the upper end, something I noticed when i had a pair on loan and the Marantz cd spinner family sound (i own a 63KI sig).....

The 6 Pi's are simply the first diy-able 'speakers ive heard that do the 'listen through' / 'disappearing act', i dunno what else i can say without writeing a review, other than WOW! and i dont like what i hear from these bloomy boxes i have.

I expect to get the drivers / horns for the 8Pi's this week but....um....i dont want entry level, i doubt i'd be dissapointed with them but after the 6 experiance, would you be so generous and send the plans please?
