

---

Subject: Music Editing
Posted by Christy on Thu, 15 Sep 2011 18:05:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I thought it might be fun to play around with my friends guitar, and me singing. I want to be able to edit the music, and possibly add things, like a drumbeat. Anyone know of some, possibly cheap, editing software for my laptop?

---

---

Subject: Re: Music Editing
Posted by Nymeria on Fri, 16 Sep 2011 12:07:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

You could always try Audacity; it's free. Make sure your laptop has a decent processor speed, sound card, and amount of RAM.

Here is the link: <http://audacity.sourceforge.net/>

---

---

Subject: Re: Music Editing
Posted by Christy on Fri, 16 Sep 2011 21:31:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Thanks, I will have to check that out. Would it be better to just download on my pc? I am still open to more suggestions, just in case I do not like Audacity.

---

---

Subject: Re: Music Editing
Posted by Siren on Fri, 16 Sep 2011 21:55:06 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

My cousin has something called Sonar, on his pc. He records his band, and adds all kinds of cool things to the music. I think Sonar might be expensive, so I guess it really depends on if you want to spend money or not.

---

---

Subject: Re: Music Editing
Posted by gofar99 on Sun, 18 Sep 2011 02:15:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi Search the web site TUCOWS. They have been around for quite some time and always seem to have what I need. They have a considerable library and things are arranged well. Much freeware, some shareware etc. They also list how well everyone liked the programs.

---

---

Subject: Re: Music Editing

Posted by DJ Dave on Sat, 03 Dec 2011 12:36:22 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I use Audacity, too. It is really easy to use and has a lot of features. If it's done right, no one will know that you don't have a band there, playing along with you.

---