I never win anything and this morning I was listening to the local station and I won! I called in with the answer to this question: What will 12% of people do on New Years Eve? The answer was sleep right through it. I won tickets to Swain Ski center!

I won a few things off of a radio auction but I did have to pay for them. I haven't won anything major off the radio in a long time. Great job on the win.

When I was younger listening to the radio was just what we all did. I'd always sit and wait to be the right caller for contests or even just to hear my voice on the radio. I can't even count how many concert tickets I won that way. I can't remember them all but I know saw INXS, Def Leppard, Squeeze and the Smithereens all for free thanks to radio contests.

I've never won anything. A couple friends of mine won tickets to a concert a few years back. They were even featured screaming over the live radio.

Good job!

I never win anything in radio contests, but that is mostly because I don't participate. I used to do so more, but even when I tried really hard, I got nothing.

I've won a few CDs! A friend of mine won tickets to a concert that included a meet and greet with the artists. Other than that, I haven't won much. I've always wanted to be the person who wins a cash prize. It hasn't happened yet!

Winning an on-air contest has always been a dream of mine. I just never seem to have good luck getting through the phones! One day, it'll happen. Winning some money would be pretty cool, I must say!

Found 20 bucks once on the sidewalk. I'd call that a win. And I was Po' then.

I don't listen to any local radio stations anymore. Back in the day, I won concert tickets once. It was probably about 15 years ago. It was great! Do local stations give that stuff away anymore?

The only thing I ever won was my verbal response to one of the topics a local talk show was talking about.

They had a call-in number where you had 60 seconds or something to voice your opinion, I did, and they played it on the station. That happened twice.

It was pretty cool.

Oh wow, congratulations! That’s such a fun win. I’ve never had any luck winning anything on the radio, the only time I ever won something was when I was much younger and it wasn’t even from a station. These days it’s my kids who come home excited about whatever prize they’ve managed to snag.

Winning tickets to Swain Ski Center is really special though. What a lovely way to start your morning! Enjoy every minute of it!
