Do you still listen to the radio at home? I guess I could listen to it via my receiver, but I generally just listen online.

I listen to the radio primarily at three times of my day:

1. When I'm in my car
  2. Late at night, just before sleeping
  3. First thing in the morning, when the alarm wakes me to radio

The only time I listen to my radio at home is when it's a special occasion like New Years Eve, or when there's a particular talk radio show that I want to hear. Other than that, I love listening to the radio in my car, especially in the morning. I love comedy morning shows, they're a great way to start the day.

I listen online at home sometimes. It really depends if I'm in a music or TV mood.

I only listen to local stations while in my car.

I'll turn the radio on once in a while when I'm home. If a song I like comes on, I'll take a break from what I'm doing and listen to it. Then when there are commercials, I'll just get back to whatever I was working on. It's a nice balance between relaxing and being productive.

I listen online or in my car. Sometimes I'll have the radio playing all day long and those are generally very relaxing days. I should do it more often.
