We have a set of wind chimes and I love listening to them; they are so peaceful.

I should probably take them down for today though; the wind is supposed to hit 35 mph this afternoon.

Did you end up taking them down or just hoped for the best? We have some alto wind chimes and I like them, but I think next time we may get some tenor ones.

I think I may have to get some of these because I know my little girl would love them! My wife is rather crafty, and she found an idea on Pinterest to let kids make their own windchimes. I will be interested to hear how those sound in comparison to store bought ones!
