What was the last concert you attended? The last one I went to was a Nickelback concert before anyone even knew who they were. The hubby and I used to go to concerts all the time, but they are so expensive now! I found tickets to one the other day and it was $25 for the ticket which is not too bad, but there was an additional $25 worth of "fees"!

The last concert I went to was Australian Pink Floyd. The tickets were outrageously expensive, about $100 each after all the fees, but it was well worth it because APF sounds JUST LIKE "the real" Pink Floyd! (However, because the tickets were so expensive, it'll probably be 5 years before we can afford to go to another concert! Haha!)

The last one for us was when Trans-Siberian Orchestra strolled through and ended up blowing out a couple of the speakers in the arena. I thought that qualified as a good concert seeing as our ticket prices were pretty batty too.

The last concert I went to was Jason Aldean. It was amazing. I am thinking of going to watch him again this year. There is a concert in a few months near me.

My last one was Chris Isaak in the early 90's in Phoenix Az. I can't remember the name of the venue but it's the small one near downtown. I haven't been in that town for so long I don't even know if its still there. I do remember that he put on a good show though.

My last show was Bruce Springsteen in the 90s. What I realize is that I only remember a few of the friends I was with that night. No recollection of which songs Springsteen and the E Street Band played. Yikes!

I never have been partial to big stadium or big venues with thousands of people. The only mega act I've ever seen in such a setting was the Who. The tickets were free, so.... But I've always liked small clubs to get a live music fix. The bands headlining those places are more obscure and of a regional level of notoriety. That said. Last band I saw before the great plague was the Belairs. I'll take it for granted no one knows of them.

Hi, What is a live concert? :lol: :lol: I used to go to many from early folk music ones to rock ones. But it has been so long I don't remember when the last one was.

I am an avid concert goer. I went to 3 concerts the year before the pandemic hit. I saw Skynyrd, Kane Brown and Lita Ford. Of course they were not playing together. Those are the last three I went to.

I've never been to a concert mainly because I'm not that fond of crowds. However, the time spent online has made me think how different the music can be in person.

I'm shocked that you go to concerts, I've only been to some events a couple of times in the last year

One of the most recent shows I attended was Charli XCX in Warsaw in November 2019.
