Has anyone gotten their Spring cleaning done yet? I have been working through the house a room at a time this week. What I want to know is where does all this "junk" we acquire come from?!?

Hi, The Energizer Bunny leaves it there overnight
We have the same problem, seal up the house tight and dust gets in anyway. In this part of the country you just get used to it and not get real excited about it.

I am almost done and I know what you mean about the "junk" I have thrown away four or five trash bags of stuff that was just taking up space and cluttering the house. I feel so much better when everything has a place to be.

I have never spring cleaned in my life. I do clean my house on at least a weekly basis, and I don't see the need to go more in-depth than that. Sometimes I will go on a purging spree when it comes to old stuff, but it doesn't need to be spring for me to do that.

I haven't even started my Spring cleaning yet. We also clean on a regular basis, but there are a few things we just do a couple of times a year. I usually wash all the curtains and comforters, and move the beds so I can get all the dust bunnies out as part of my Spring cleaning routine.
