Well guys I have put it off as long as possible. We have been in the "new" house for three years in July, and I have yet to reglaze the windows. Now I no longer have a choice because the majority of the old glazing has fallen out into the window sill. I would just about rather have my fingernails pulled out than re-glaze a window, and we have about 15 of them. If you don't see me around in the next day or so you will know...the windows have won.

Oh, yuck. I hope that it goes easily for you. I have had to do this before with my dad, and let's just say it was no day at the beach!
