
Subject: A decent cd player

Posted by TurnItUp on Sat, 12 May 2012 01:12:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Is it no longer possible to buy a decent cd player without spending a couple of hundred dollars on it? We have bought two standard cd player boomboxes in the past year and neither one of them plays cd's any more. I could understand if they didn't play older cd's, but they won't play brand new just took the plastic off cd's either!

Subject: Re: A decent cd player

Posted by LuvMartin on Thu, 17 May 2012 22:29:14 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have actually had this problem too. I have given up on a cd player, and now I just play cd's on my computer. Maybe one day I'll run across a reasonably priced player that actually works.

Subject: Re: A decent cd player

Posted by FloydV on Tue, 19 Jun 2012 06:03:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

If I remember correctly, I think this one is around $5K

<http://www.mcintoshlabs.com/us/Products/pages/categorylanding.aspx?CatId=Source>

Since DVD and BR players do an excellent job of handling CDs and are so cheap, they have probably replaced CD players. That would be my guess. I'm not sure if CD players that handle five or six discs are still available.

Floyd
