As many of you noticed, we had a server outage yesterday. It started as a power loss at the datacenter where our server is located, but something about that also damaged datacenter networking. Further complicating matters, we were in the process of upgrading security at the time of the install, so some of our files were in an intermediate state. We basically had a perfect storm, which complicated the recovery process. Anyway, all is back online now, with no data loss. Sorry for the inconvenience.
