Led Zeppelin members are plugging a concert film from their show in 2007 but won't commit to reuniting when asked. I really don't think they are going to, but it makes me sad; I wish they would.

I'm a little disappointed by the lack of good rock artists out there. I feel like time is flying by and rocking is slowing dying. Bands are breaking up and members are always being replaced. It feels as though these are the apocalyptic times for rock.

On the other hand, I could just be missing quality music.
