Thought I'd make a rare post for an excellent movie I just saw. The Hunter stars Willem dafoe. It takes place in Tasmania, and he's a hunter-trapper looking for the legendary Tasmanian Tiger. Enough said with plot, see for yourself, it's a really fine movie that flew under the radar like many low budget independent film's.

A few other stealth movies that sock'd it too me were, Incendies (French Canadian), Let The Right One In (Swedish), Take Shelter (Amarkin) and, The Skin I Live In (Spanish). Hey I don't mind subtitles. But a good story is nice now and again a-midst all the cgi.
