I am in the Atlanta area and just as soon as I find a good station they change the format! In the past three months, around ten stations have changed the type of station that they are and none of them have been for the better!

They must feel that they don't have enough listeners with their current format, so they switch to another. It's annoying for sure, but a lot of stations seem to be doing that these days.

I feel your pain. That happens around here too and it drives me crazy. I feel like I am constantly reprogramming the car radio presets.
