I can't stand wrapping presents! I try to wrap as I buy so I don't end up with whole piles at one time, but it never works out that way. I really like unwrapping presents though.

I think we're all in the same boat there. I try to find stores that will do it for you though. It might cost a little more but it's worth it to me, and they do look really nice.

In years past, there have been church groups and boyscouts who would do it for a donation and I have eagerly participated in that. I haven't seen anyone offering that this year though. At least not yet!
