

---

Subject: Music In War Zones

Posted by Nouri on Wed, 12 Dec 2012 21:26:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I haven't seen any news about anything like this lately, but does anyone know if music is still used in areas of conflict? Like to draw the enemy out of buildings?

---

---

Subject: Re: Music In War Zones

Posted by TurnItUp on Thu, 13 Dec 2012 19:39:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

With the introduction of drones and things of that nature I kind of doubt that war zones are blasted with music like they were in past conflicts. Warzones in poorer countries may still use this tactic though.

---

---

Subject: Re: Music In War Zones

Posted by Bill Wassilak on Tue, 01 Jan 2013 03:47:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

The last time I heard of it being used was in the Iraq war, to deprive the enemy of sleep. So the enemy would be too tired to put up a decent fight, as some of my military friends put it.

---